

Undergraduate Tuition Fee Grants - Regulations

Background

The scheme derives from the intention of the Trust's Founder, Andrew Carnegie, "to render attendance at the Universities of Scotland and the enjoyment of their advantages more available to the deserving and qualified youth of Scotland to whom the payment of fees might act as a barrier".

The scheme aims to support students who do not receive government funding towards the costs of their tuition fees. Applicants must demonstrate that their financial circumstances will hinder access to their chosen course of study when making a request for funding to the Carnegie Trust.

Applications are assessed on a case-by-case basis. When deciding on an application the Trust employs a holistic approach that considers, in addition to the student's financial situation, their personal circumstances, previous study and motivations for undertaking their current degree course.
